

Simone joined Bousfields as a Project Manager - Community Engagement after completing her Masters in Urban Planning at Harvard Graduate School of Design. As a key member of Bousfields' Community Engagement Practice, Simone develops, manages and implements a number of stakeholder engagement plan for projects across the GTA, many of which are located in downtown Toronto and Etobicoke. One of her focuses is digital engagement and, specifically, how to use project websites and creative visuals to reach broader and more diverse audiences. Simone also has experience developing effective tenant consultation and communications strategies. Drawing from the depth and breadth of her experience, she aims to generate dynamic approaches to engagement that spark meaningful and constructive dialogue, as well as inspire those who may not traditionally participate to do so.
