

Caroline brings almost 20 years of public and private sector experience working in architecture and urban design. A licensed Architect with a Master’s Degree in Urban Design and a Bachelor’s Degree in Architecture, Caroline offers a unique perspective to community building, including residential, commercial and mixed use developments. Her experience in development review at the City of Toronto, combined with her management role for Waterfront Toronto on the Quayside plan, means that Caroline has a unique perspective on development in downtown Toronto, including the waterfront. Caroline has provided her expertise to a wide range of development projects, master plans, precinct plans, secondary plans and urban design studies and guidelines for a variety of scales and locations. Caroline has provided evidence as an expert witness at LPAT.
